THE ECHO

AN EPIC REVIEW OF 1940

PUBLISHED BY
SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL
DUBUQUE, IOWA

EDITOR—JOSEPH B. GEDANIC

Foreword

For many years Dubuque's Seven Hills stood, challenging bulwarks to man. Our forefathers, striving in the spirit of progress and Americanism, conquered them, and built on them a city that towers above their loftiest knolls.

ECHO 1940 is dedicated to the hope that in their spirit Senior students year after year will make the "D" symbolize bigger mountains of success, higher peaks of glory.

Presenting the seven D-shaped hills from which the echoes of 1940 have rebounded:

DATA—whose echoes are census takers

DIRECTORS—whose echoes are pedagogic

DE POPULO—whose echoes are individual

DIVISIONS—whose echoes are hard working

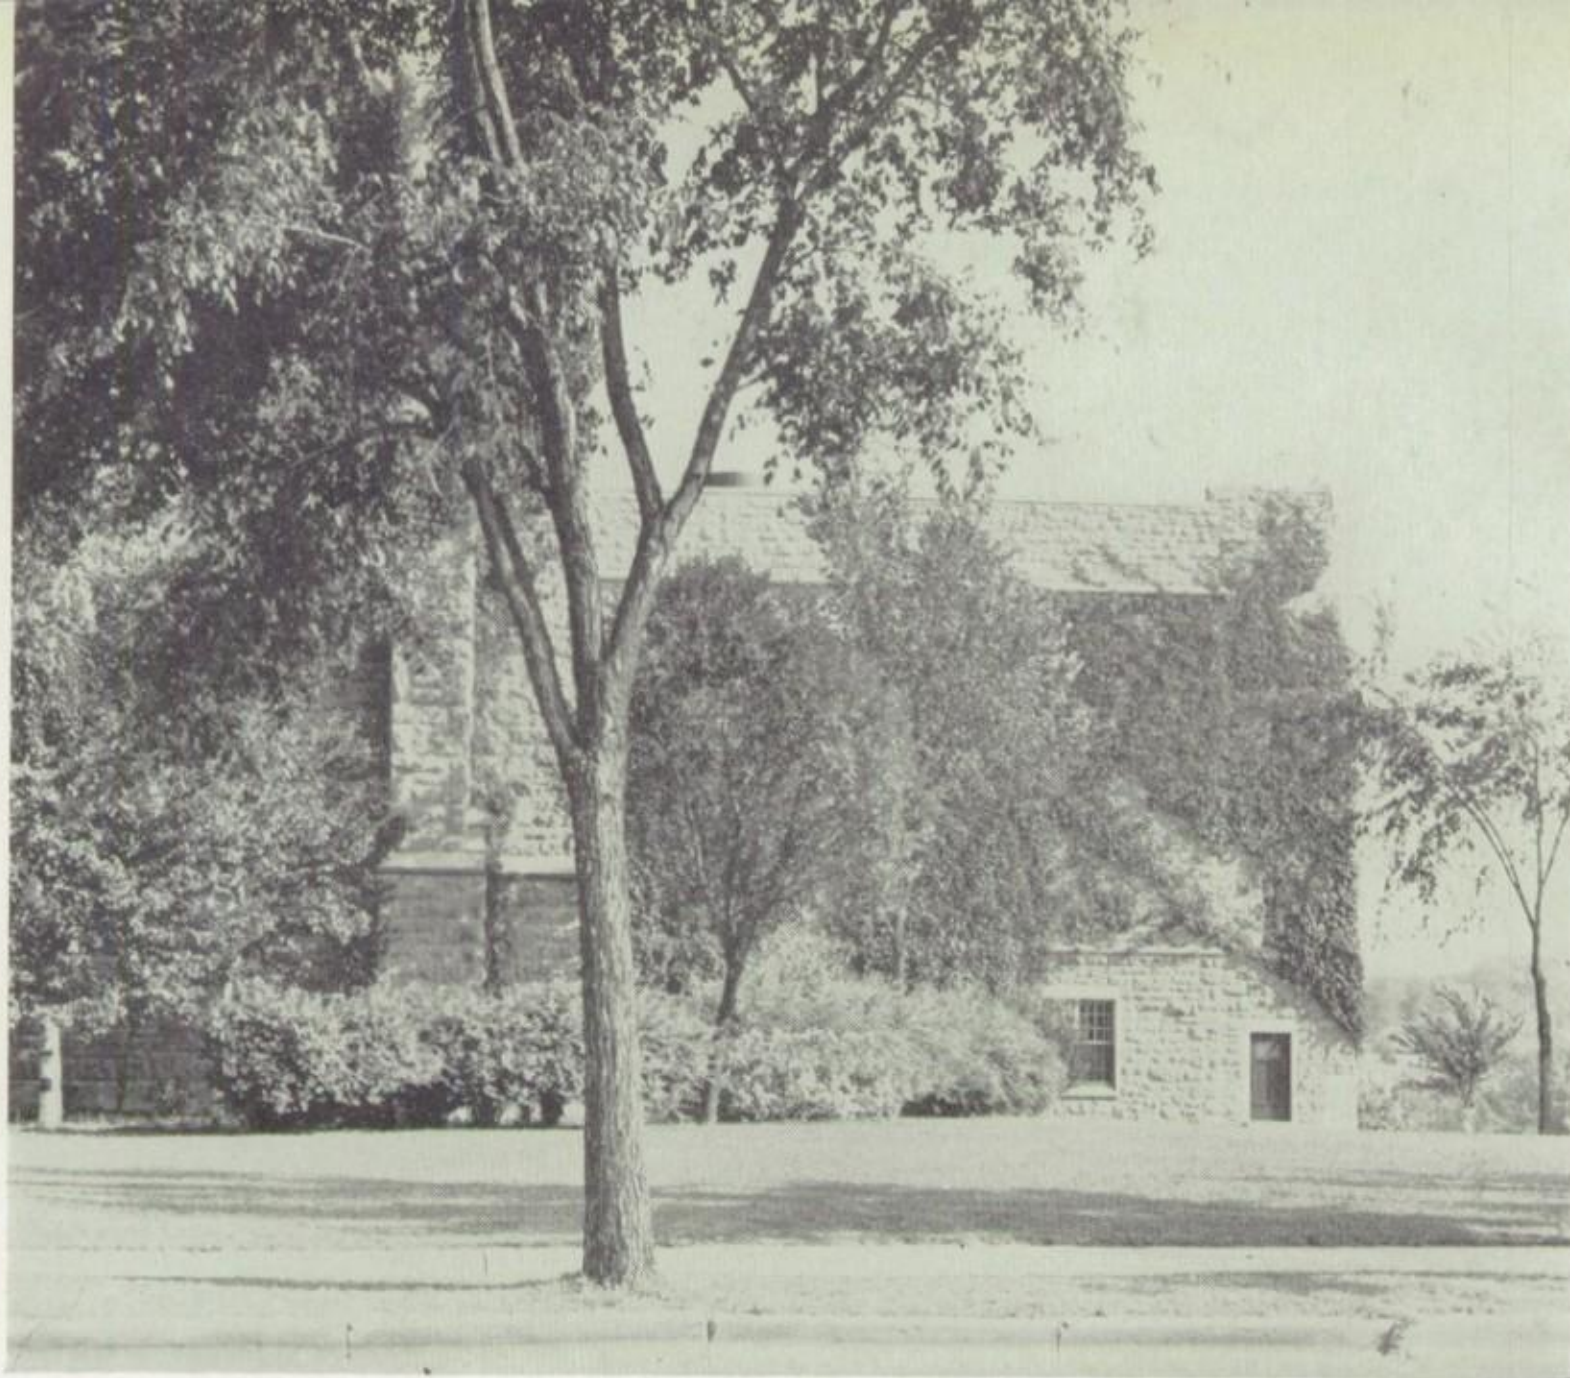

DEFENDERS—whose echoes are sportsmanlike

DOERS—whose echoes are go-getters

DIVERSION—whose echoes are fun-loving

Meet the School

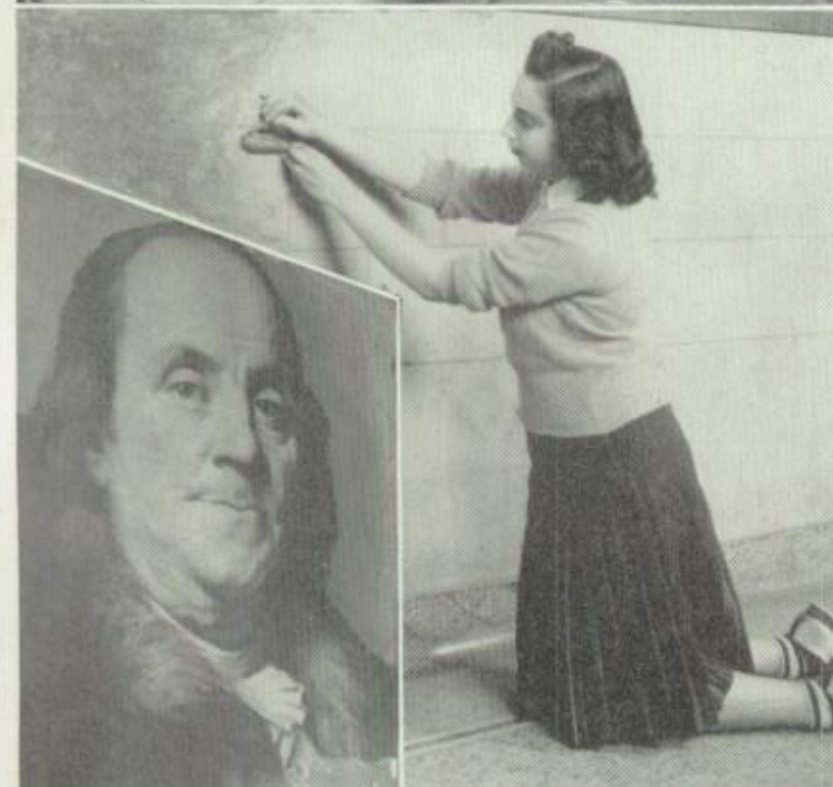

DATA

Students who plod Senior's halls everyday overlook its beauty. Data is a recollection of facts unique and commonplace, about the building and its policies that will increase your present enjoyment and grow more important as the years roll by.

Senior is Big: It has an enrollment of 301 Seniors, 351 Juniors, and 445 Sophomores . . . has 43 teachers . . . has 610 steps . . . 128 doors . . . keeps time to 39 clocks . . . costs $16,500 yearly to run . . . keeps warm with 700 tons of coal yearly . . . requires one weiner to measure 1323 weiner-lengths from one end of the main hall to the other.

Senior is Well Equipped: It has an up-to-date cafeteria, calculators and dictaphone in the commercial department, has phonograph records of dramatic masterpieces for the English department, modern machines and presses in the vocational department . . . 17 teachers have M.A. degrees . . . has a library of 6,700 books, 50 magazines, four newspapers . . . has a streamlined public address system, sound motion projector for classroom use.

Senior is Enjoyable: Witness the beauty of the building when the vines are red in fall, when it is covered with snow, when the vines bud green in the spring.—The pictures on Senior's walls which are notoriously unnoticed! (Not one in ten students will believe the retake of Franklin in the cut is from Senior's walls.)

Senior is Democratic: Ruled by a student council who place monitors to student-patrol the halls. Discipline, as far as is practicable is in the hands of students.

Senior is Progressive: It offers abstract courses to guide students in choosing a career, as well as supplementary courses to round out individual personality. Aiding career-seekers in a more material way are the practice of letting commercial students get experience by working in the office, and courses in retail selling . . . The activity of students are efficiently compiled by a point system enumeration.

Senior Will Grow Better: Promise of that was given with the Federal sanction of a grant for improvements planned by the School Board. The greatest of them include: 1. New athletic field. 2. Putting grass on the old field. 3. Girls' gym. 4. New band room underneath the shop.

Not only does the building program give rise to hopes of improvements, but the enthusiasm of youth, guided by the experience of dynamic teachers proclaims that the Senior of Tomorrow will be so great that its occupants of Today will not recognize it.

Office Force: Dubler, Haxmeier, Chihak, Meisenburg, Kaiser, Fluhr, Gross, Breitbach, Lobstein.

Students come and go, but the teachers remain turning out successive classes of better equipped, better educated young people, building school activities to greater success each year. Senior's teachers are friendly. Their motto: "Spoil the rod, Spare the child."

"The People" — their classes described by the Devil's Dictionary. Sophomore: One you can tell, but not much. Junior: Not foolish enough to be a Soph, not fooling enough to be a Senior. Senior: Can be recognized by his "dignity."

Senior Class Officers

JOHN AUSTIN—Possesses great ability as a leader, as he was president of the sophomore class and an officer again in his junior year. Distinguished himself as a basketball player in his last year.

ELMER SISLER—Well-known to most students as a star wrestler and a scrappy football player. He has always been a willing helper in promoting any class or social activity.

GEORGE RILEY—Friendly to all his classmates, he has been a leader of his class in his sophomore, junior, and senior years, and was cheerleader in his senior year.

JANET CURTIS—Held the position of recording secretary in her sophomore year and served on the student council last year. Took part in numerous other extra-curricular activities while at Senior.

MILDRED KAISER—Able served her class in her Senior year and held a student council post in her junior year. A National Honor member, a National Thespian, and also active in club work.

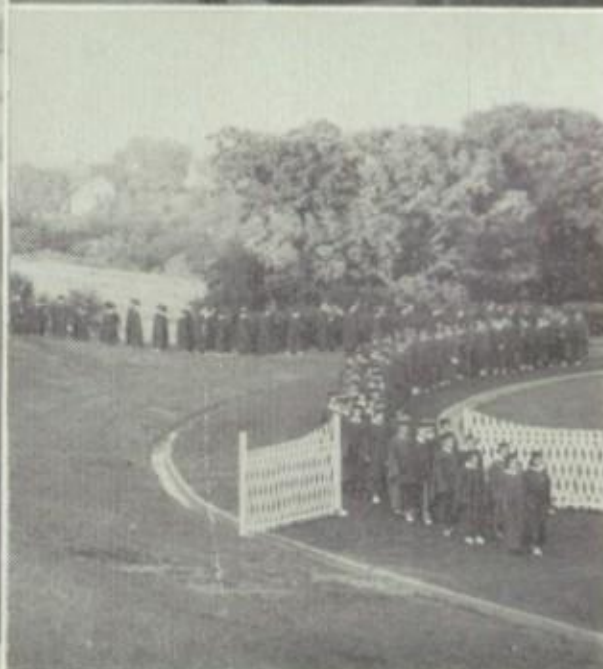

They Conquered

With the Sophomore year of adaptation and the Junior year of work behind them, the Senior class was well fortified for a year of outstanding activity and leadership. The trivialities of undergoing measurement for cap and gown, and ordering announcements of graduation first heralded graduation to the Seniors. Next came the vogue of exchanging calling cards with friends. Of major importance was the Senior banquet, highlighted by the "Gone With The Wind" theme, at which the members of the class heard speeches by the class president, their futures foretold. A dramatic triumph was scored by the Senior play "What A Life." Yet to come are the climaxing Baccalaureate and Graduation ceremonies. After graduation, 90 of the class of 1940 expect to face college, the rest will grapple the world.

The business of the nation may be business, but the business of school is going to school. To those who have been at one time or other members of the scholastic A or D Club, is presented this portrait of Seniorites at work.

Brush Wielders

Art, besides developing the student's talent, tends to increase his appreciation of life about him. It was taught in elementary and advanced classes, as well as in a new course this year for students in retail sales classes, which imparted such information on art in lettering and design that is of use to the salespeople. Under the guidance of Miss Grace Kegley, the department was strong in supporting the Promotion Committee, making posters for various events, and helping on stage scenery.

Concentration in Calculation

"If" is the beginning of many an important theorem and corollary that tantalizes students in the six study math card at Senior. Included in the subjects are plane geometry, solid geometry, trigonometry, unified mathematics, advanced algebra and college algebra, all of which are taught by Miss Alice White and Miss Florence Magson.

Mathematics may be thought of as an endurance contest or a survival of the fittest starting with a bounty of classes in plane geometry and finishing up with a skimpy class in college algebra.

Plane geometry, a sophomore course, involves geometric problems with two dimensions. With the aid of a construction set which is dubbed an "erector set" the mathematicians study the three dimensional problems of solid geometry relating to areas and surfaces.

Plane trigonometry is an intricate study of the solutions of triangles. The course is a great boost for would-be engineers, since it is the most practical study of the math curriculum.

Advanced and college algebra take up where the students left off in junior high, and are intended to prepare the student for college.

Unified math is a practical course for students not taking higher courses; it involves interest, finance, and intuitive geometry.

Business Before Pleasure

Since many students plan to go on to a business career rather than to college after graduating from high school, an attempt has been made to make the commercial department at Senior High as complete as possible in order to train these students for their future work. The commercial department is divided into four courses: general clerical, bookkeeping, stenographic, and retail selling.

Miss Mary Young teaches shorthand, while typing is taught by Miss Gertrude Merritt and Miss Jennie Johnson. Advanced students are taught stenography, a combination of shorthand dictation and typing.

Bookkeeping methods are taught by Lester Becker and Miss Young with the aid of practice sets. All enrollees in the commercial department must study Business English, in which they are instructed business forms and languages by Miss Alma Kruse.

Miss Emily Walter has charge of the office practice and filing classes. Office practice explains office work and the use of the different types of office equipment. Filing includes practice in the systematic filing of papers, documents and business letters.

Miss F. Krantz supervises the machine calculation classes, teaching the students to compete rapidly as well as accurately on the calculator.

Gerald McAleece is the instructor of business law and business organization. Business law is a study of simple business legalities, while business organization is a course in business management, its operations and departments.

Newly added to the Commercial Department this year was geography. This was adopted to better acquaint the students with the different sections of the United States and the chief products of each section.

The retail sales curriculum, under the supervision of Mr. A. Edwin Forsman, include a combination of general and commercial subjects with salesmanship and merchandising courses. It is designed to give the pupil an opportunity to test his aptitude and ability for merchandising work, and to provide him with a practical foundation for a selling job.

Skirts Are Going Up!

'Midst the odors of jellies and cakes, Senior's Food students are taught the basis of food preparation. The importance of good health, its characteristics and the contribution of good food to good health are stressed. Patterns of a meal are formed by the girls. Perhaps the simplest pattern is the soup, quick bread, and beverage. Each group of four girls plan a menu, markets for the food, prepares and serves the meal. The girls take turns in acting as hostess. In the last semester, a buffet meal is served. Also during the fall semester, cookies are made and packed for some particular group such as the orphanage.

Planning meals for the children of the Open Window Room is the first project of the 11b Food classes. Each girl plans a week's menu costing an amount determined by the sum allotted to the Open Window Room. These menus are then prepared and served to the children. Dinners for the class, much like those of the 10b class, are also planned by the 11b classes with a more difficult menu. Also among the large projects of the year are the preparation and serving of an afternoon tea and a four course dinner. A study is made for some of the abnormal conditions, such as diabetes and anemia, that are treated nutritionally.

Then for those girls who are more efficient with the needle and scissors, Senior offers a three semester clothing study. Each student in the clothing classes makes a number of pieces of clothing, ranging from a simple one in 10a to a difficult one in 12a. No distinction is made between those who have and those who have not taken sewing in the Junior High Schools.

The building and furnishing of a home constitutes the main course of study in the home management classes. Besides studying the different style of modern houses, the student also learns the materials that go into the construction of a house.

Each girl is assigned a certain size family with a representative Dubuque income within the moderate income level. She selects a house and lot in keeping with the needs of the family assigned, and decorates and furnishes the house, stressing room background, walls and wall coverings, woodwork, floor and floor covering, window curtaining, color in relation to the furnishings, and selection and placement of the furniture.

Down With Slanguage

Three years of English work, courses in speech and journalism, instill in students an understanding of the rudiments of language, develop their love for literature, and their talents for speaking and writing.

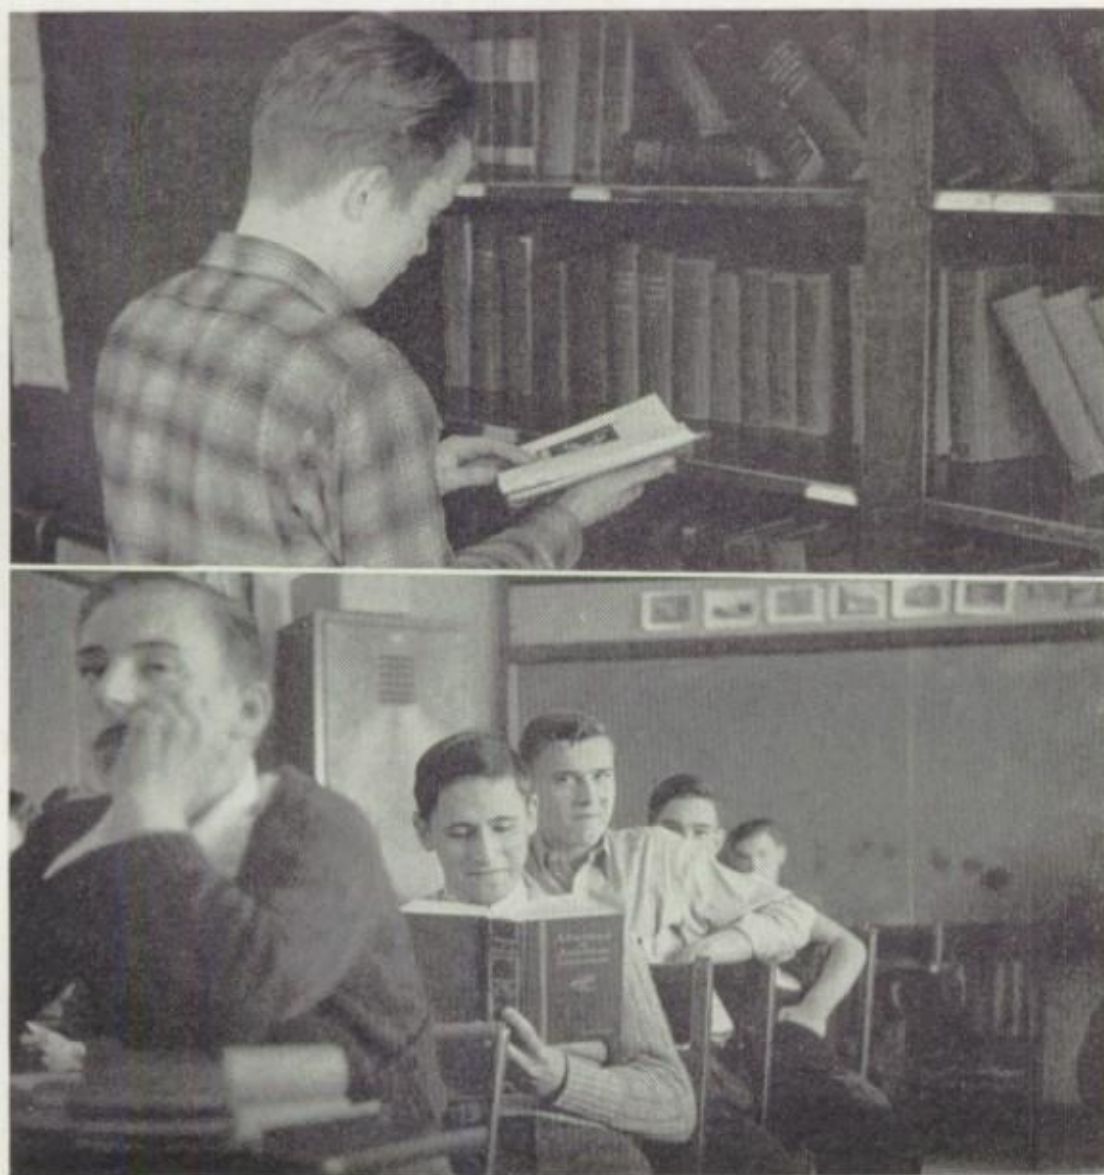

Correct usage both in writing and in speaking, the reading of several novels and a two-week period which is spent on movie appreciation are the phases of work in the sophomore course. Miss Anna Gonner, Miss Helen Rowan, and Miss Alma Kruse teach these fundamentals.

Junior students are taught American literature, including the short story, poetry, the essay, the biography, the autobiography, the magazine and the novel, by Miss E. Fern Andrews, Miss Helen Rowan, and Miss Hildegard Stolteben. Business English is taken by those students who are enrolled in the commercial courses. It is taught by Miss Alma Kruse and is helpful in their other work.

English literature is an elective course for senior and is taught by Miss Anna Gonner. Students study all phases of the work of English authors, how the various types of literature are constructed, and also attempt to write prose and poetry.

Journalism is a year course offered for junior or senior students who are interested in newspaper work. During the first semester students are taught by Miss Hildegard Stolteben, head of the English Department, the fundamentals of newspaper writing and reporting, while the second semester class edits the high school weekly paper, "The News."

Speech, under the direction of Miss Edra Walter, cultivates the voice, poise, and self-confidence. These students prepare plays and verse readings for presentation in student assemblies.

Curiosity Killed the Cat

Maralyn Campbell in Chem. Lab.

Spielman Operating in Biology.

Curiosity is that zest for discovery which has impelled man to the accomplishments of modern civilization. Bent over books, peering into microscopes, are Senior students with the same desire—to go beyond present frontiers and build a better world of the Future.

Pictured above are students in physiology class inspecting a cat's interior. Physiology students also learn of functions or organisms of anatomy. Taught also by Clifford O. Johnson is geology, a study of the earth's surface and its makeup. Every spring, field trips are made to Specht's Ferry, Dominic's pool and local stone quarries. Biology, the study of all living things, includes botany, a study of plant life; zoology, a study of animal life; and bacteriology.

Taught by Wilbur Dalzell are Physics and General Science. The scope of the former covers light, heat, sound and all the phases of electricity, and practical experiments in class illustrate problems and theories.

This year in response to student demand, Neil T. Lutes, head of the Science department, divided chemistry up into different departments. The first semester all students took introductory chemistry which served to familiarize pupils with laboratory methods. The second semester, students interested in metals took metal chemistry, which deals with the study of the chemical properties of various metal elements and their compounds. The majority of students, however, registered in the organic chemistry, which deals with the material and chemical makeup of plant life and all organisms.

In addition to these two courses, students were also able to enroll in qualitative analysis as a supplement to second semester chemistry. In this subject which concerns the analysis of either metals or organisms, students are introduced to actual college laboratory work.

Shop Science, a required subject for all senior machine shop or wood-working boys, is also taught by Mr. Lutes. The rudiments of physics, mechanics, general science and chemistry are taught the boys in order to equip them with a scientific background.

Right, Dress!

"Right, Dress!" was the order that snapped students into line in required physical education classes. Those who took gym are likely to have mixed memories of stiff limbs tired from hard exercises, of the thrills of competitive sport.

At the beginning of the year boys' gym classes chose captains and organized into teams, picked for them such bizarre names as "Gashouse Sissies" and "Shiftless Skonks." In the fall they went outside on the athletic field and played team games in football and soccer. When colder weather had chased them inside, the boys played volleyball, basketball, and had an indoor track meet. Boys interested in tumbling and fencing were given lessons in those arts. At an amateur program during the winter, the boys' tumbling team gave exhibitions. In the spring, social dancing was co-sponsored by James J. Nora and Miss Melanie Kretschmer, gym instructors. All boys and girls interested were taught various steps from the sedate waltz to frisky jitter-bugging.

In girls' physical education classes a similar arrangement was used. The teams competed in volleyball, basketball, and baseball. Besides these activities the girls skipped rope, participated in tumbling exercises.

Individual tests were given in posture, basketball free-throws, dribbling, and passing. In volleyball, girls were given practice in serving, and at the end of the semester, they took tests in the sport.

What Will It Look Like Next?

Mere mention of the word science in connection with such subjects as history and economics sends a qualm into the heart of the bravest students, but nevertheless the Social Science course at Senior has prospered and grown until it now numbers six courses. Through all of them runs the theme of studying past history, theories to gain their lessons, and the art of applying them to present problems.

Included among courses are four veterans, world history, American history, economics and social problems, and two newcomers this year, International Relations and Latin American history.

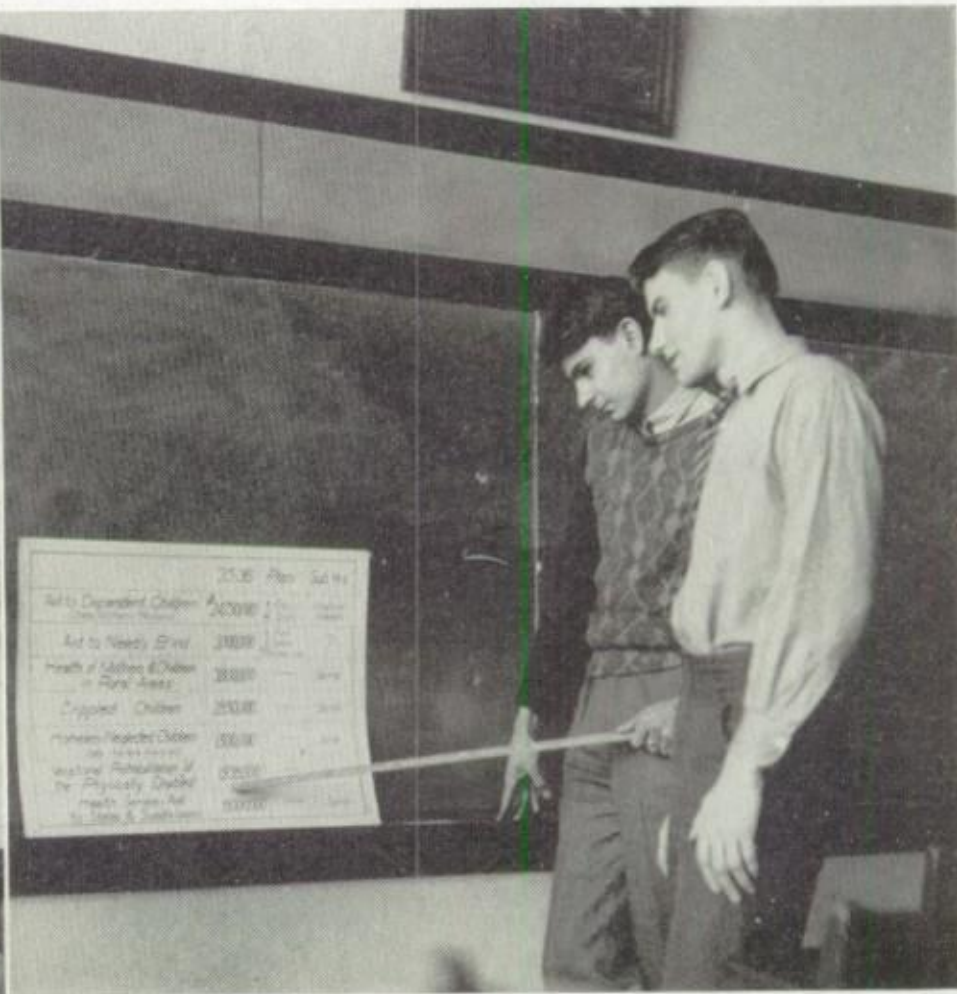

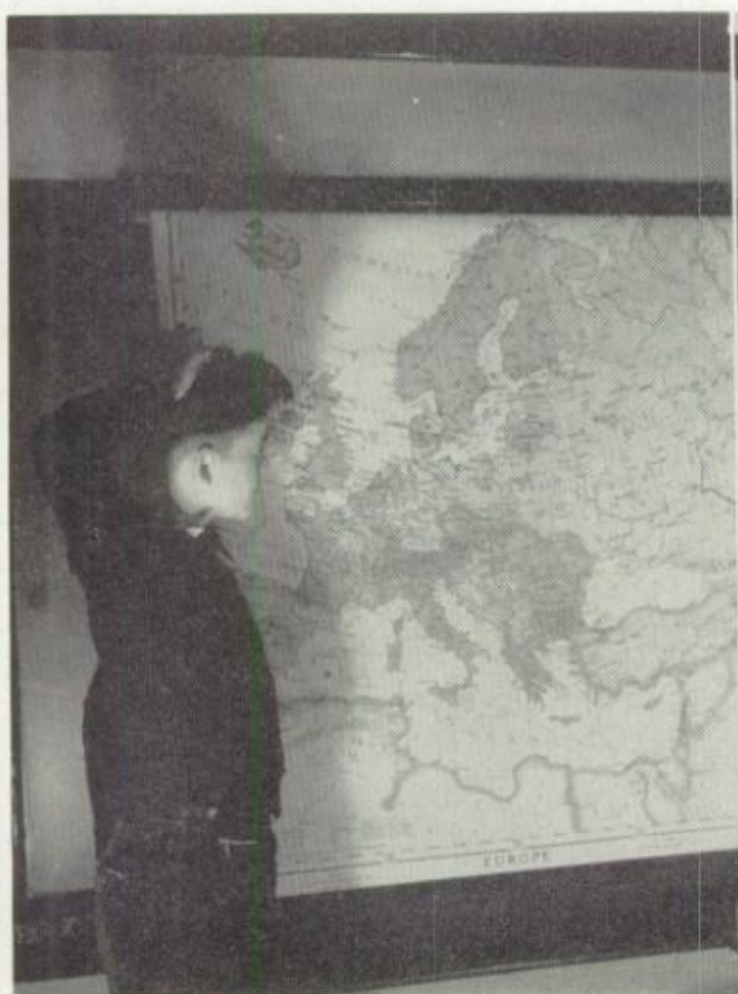

A sophomore subject, world history includes a bit of everything from the cave-man's ancestors to modern industry and science. Study is made of the causes and results of various wars and revolutions. Miss Margarete Reu teaches the course.

Every student, usually during his junior year, is exposed to the two semester subject of American history, a study required by the state of Iowa. The course includes an extensive study of events in American history. Emphasis is placed on the student's ability to read the various books of history and to interpret the truth from them. Current events also undergo critical examination. Three teachers, Miss Killeen, Miss Kintzinger, and Miss Trenk, handle the course.

Each senior before he leaves his Alma Mater undergoes a course in his last year composed of a semester of Social Problems and a semester of Economics. Social Problems is a beginner's course in the deep mysteries of sociology. The course takes up human actions and behavior, their causes and results. Economics, to quote a well known textbook, is a study of man's wants and the means he takes to satisfy them.

Two new courses this year are International Relations and Latin American history. With history and government as background, current national and international problems and relationships are discussed in the first named course. Latin American history involves a study of the history of our neighbors to the south, and serves to accentuate Pan-American solidarity. Instructors: Miss Killeen and Miss Nelson.

The Exclusive Virgil Class

Some Read the News in French

They Know Their Linguistic Onions

Students who are especially enthused over long vocabulary lists and tricky translations can indulge in their whimsies for foreign languages to the extent of five years—three of Latin and two of French as offered by Senior's language departments.

First year Latin at Senior can be a nightmare but at the same time the pungent quips of one Julius Caesar in his Gallic Wars and fascinating word studies make the course particularly valuable for dexterity in juggling the English language, of which a good part comes from Latin. The background gained from famous Latin translations can be used to the pupil's advantage.

That "grand old man" of Latin literature, Cicero, along with his works undergoes critical examination in third year Latin. Cicero's orations against the villain "Cataline" which are translated and dissected word by word, form a fascinating core for the students' work.

A mystifying chain of events sometime back in B. C. combined together to produce fourth year Latin, Vergil's Aeneid. The Aeneid is the story of the weird travels of Aeneas from the fallen Troy and consequent founding of Rome.

Trying to talk French fluently as the French talk it is the primary purpose of the two year French course offered at Senior. Recitations are at a maximum in order to achieve this goal. To give the students a try at writing French in addition to speaking it, original compositions in French are assigned.

Practice in translation is offered through the reading of French novels and short stories, as well as French newspapers. Correspondence with boys and girls in France is encouraged.

Woodticks

Mr. Chambers' Buzz Saw

As every Seniorite knows, Woodticks, Devils, and Greaseballs refer, respectively, to students in the Woodworking, Printing and Machine Shop departments. These, with the addition of mechanical drawing comprise the vocational department.

There is an air of factory production about these classes, whose purpose is to train the student for future positions in Dubuque's industrial establishments. Three hours a day under actual working conditions are devoted to the furtherance of this object. There are hour classes, however, in manual training to teach students an appreciation of woodcraft, and the mechanical drawing classes are also but an hour.

Efficiency is the keynote of the wood-working department under the guidance of E. G. Chambers. When projects are assigned, there is an "in or else" stipulation tacked on. There's no time wasted in classes building smokers, stands, etc., for personal use. Some projects assigned to the class are for use in the Dubuque school system. On a project for teachers' desks a certain group were given the task of the legs, another tops; all of which, using the mass production system, made for speedy completion of the job.

Aided by a special library and numerous modern machines the machine shop, in charge of florimanist John B. Fecht, has set as its goal the training of its enrollees in skilled use and making of tools and machine parts. Production methods are also in use here and special emphasis is placed on the care and use of delicate and intricate machinery. Calipers, screw drivers, hammers, and clamps include some of the products emanating from the shop. A virtual prerequisite in machine work, mathematics takes an important role in the course.

That little known corridor down by the cafeteria leads to the print shop, home of the D. H. S. printing department—an important cog in Dubuque educational machinery. Here, under the direction of L. J. Jonas, prospective printers and pressmen learn case memorization, the location of all pieces of type in a portioned case, are taught how to lock forms to keep type already set from falling out, and receive knowledge on operating presses for job work. All jobs are set by hand, since the shop has not the luxury of linotype machines.

Jobs by advance students include work on window cards for school events, permits, report cards, athletic score cards. One club paper, the four page Nature Club News, is turned out by the plant.

In the Mechanical Drawing classes, under the tutorship of L. R. Austin, students are assigned drawings to do and a certain number must be in each report period. After taking the fundamental course of orthographic and working drawings, students may choose either architectural or advanced machine drawings.

Students in the Vocational department are unusually fraternal, holding various contests among their group and with others from the academic departments dubbed "Pencil Pushers" in football and basketball. "Various orchestras on recording" played for a dance sponsored by the Woodticks.

As the Twig Is Bent

"—So the tree is inclined" is the philosophy of the guidance courses which are intended to help the students mold their careers. Every student is required to take one guidance course every semester.

Orientation, taken by 10b students, acquaints them with the school in general, its laws, student council, clubs, and class officers. The second semester concerns auto education. Laws of the highway, the parts of cars, and how they are manipulated are learned in this course.

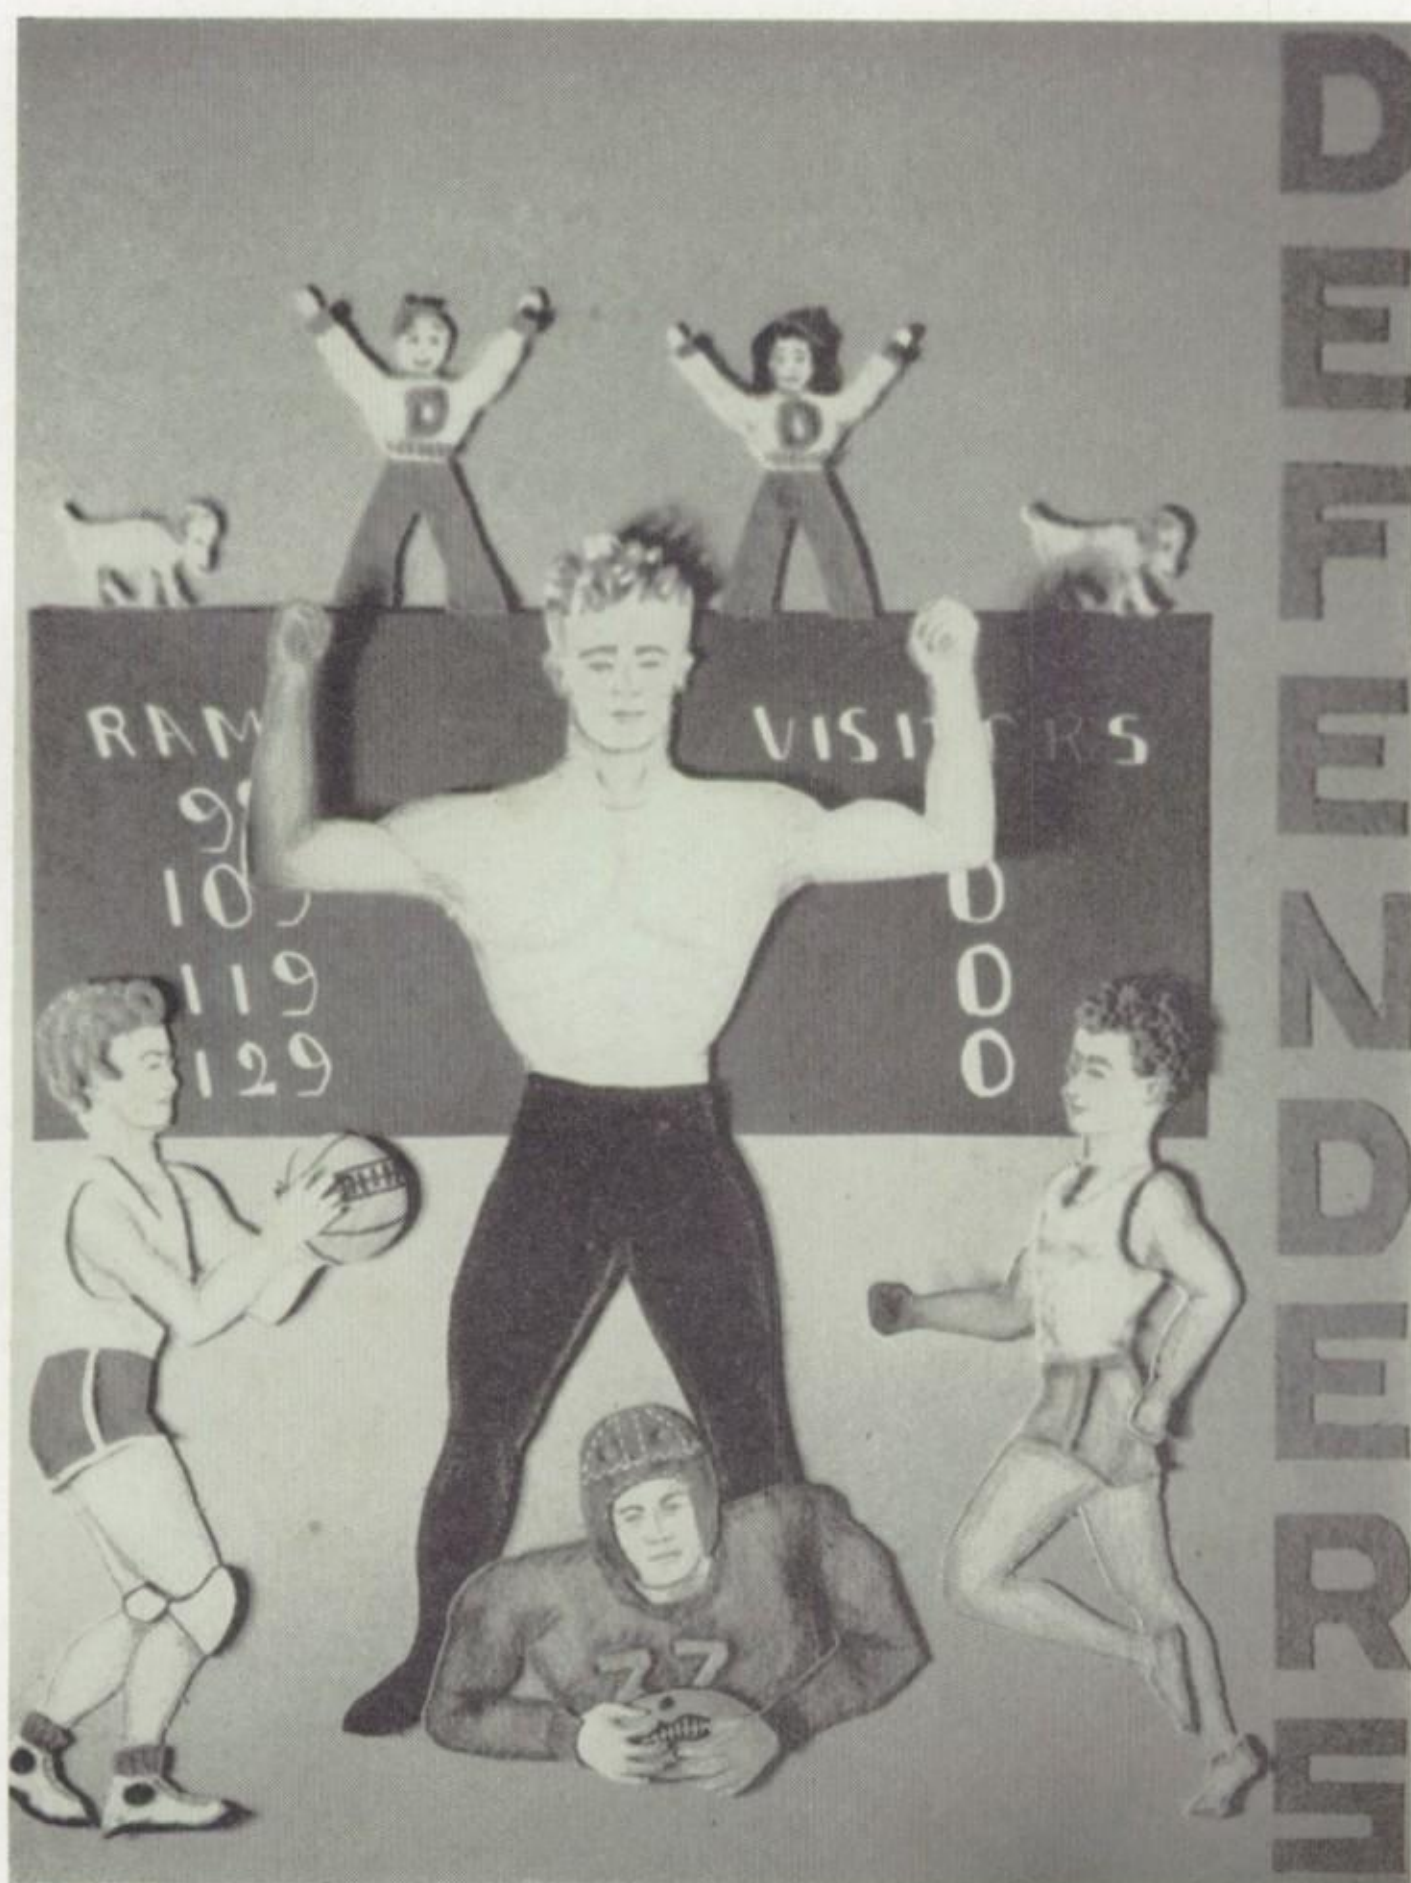

Juniors are taught parliamentary law, that is, how to conduct a meeting properly. In the latter part of the course students are taught proper table manners, etiquette on dates, in company, and in the home.

Newspaper reading is a course which was inserted last year. Proper reading and discussion of newspapers are the main phases of work in this class which is also taken by Juniors.

In Senior budgeting classes, students are required to maintain a budget of their expenditures during one month. Personal adjustment is divided into two types of classes—for those students who intend to attend college, and those who will end their formal education with high school.

Many a student who has gone through the guidance course with an upturned nose has come to say, like the race horse who was bitten by a bumblebee: "It helped."

Sports mean thrills to those who play and those who watch. Both throb to tense moments — like the touchdown pass that won the Homecoming game in the last sixty seconds. Relive those breathtaking moments as you read the 1940 sport annals.

When hopefuls for the Ram football squad assembled for their first 1939 practice, dopesters promptly established the team as the question mark of the Mississippi Valley conference race, but there were no question marks when the end of the season found Dubuque camped on top of the standings, a championship under their belts; their record—7 won, 2 lost.

Logan High handed the Rams their only home defeat by the score of 12 to 6 when the team from La Crosse caught Dubuque napping on the annual fall dusting of the sleeper play and shoved over their first touchdown in the second quarter. A spread play clinched the game for Logan. The Rams scored their only points on a pass to Sisler.

Iowa City's Little Hawks made the other black mark on the Ram's record with a game that ended up 7 to 6. Scoring early on a line plunge by Hoerner after an intercepted pass, the Red and Blue held a 6-0 lead until the third quarter when the Hawks made successful conversion after touchdown to give them their winning total.

First taste of victory for the Rams came in their first game at Freeport with a 14-0 victory. The Rams did all their scoring in the first half on a 23 yard gallop by Hoerner and a sweeping end run by Pape. Numerous fumbles slowed the game.

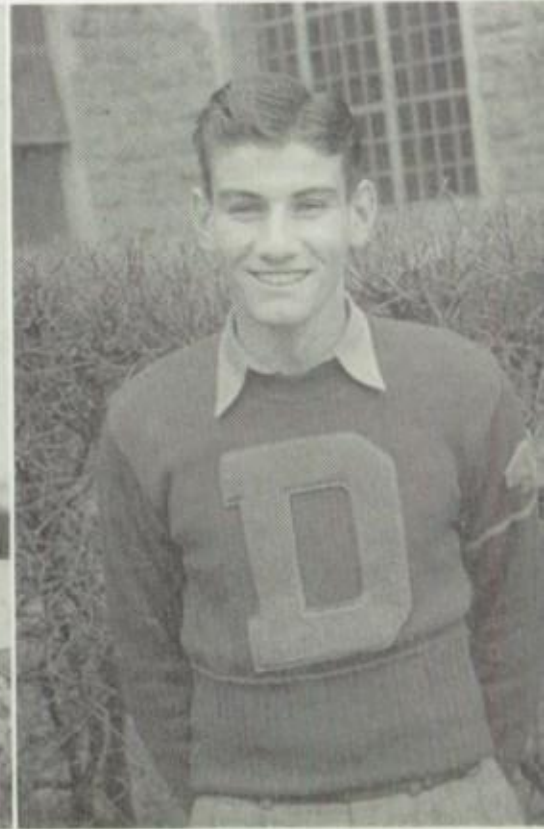

In a Dad's Night game, marred by a sloppy passing game and frequent fumbles, the Dalzellmen opened conference play at Dubuque by trouncing Franklin 7 to 0. The Rams tallied on an end around play that ended up with a pass to Sisler in the end zone.

With East Waterloo leading 6-0 at this half, a reformed Red and Blue team fought back with a second half rally to pull the game out of the fire, the final score being 13 to 6. The rally and eventual victory was engineered by Hoerner who made a long gallop for the first tally and lateralled to Noonan for the second. East scored on a line buck.

Davenport became the third Dubuque conference victim by a score of 12 to 0 when the Blue Devils fell before a slashing Ram attack that gave the down river team no chance to exhibit their vaunted power. The Dubuque scores came in the first half on a long pass and two lengthy runs.

In the final home game of the season, the Rams jolted themselves out of their lethargy just in time to nip W. Waterloo 6 to 0 in the final 60 seconds of play. With half the Homecoming crowd already out of the stands and the remaining half frozen, the Red and Blue took advantage of a 16 yard penalty on the Wahawks to unhitch a long "cross-your-fingers" pass to McLaughlin on the seven yard line. On the next play, Sisler snared a pass in the end zone on Dalzell's famous Zipper play to sew up the game.

Campion Academy failed to offer much in the way of opposition as the entire Ram outfit joined hands to romp over the Red Knights 26-6. Coach Dalzell reviewed his batch of plays with Dubuque scoring on everything from spread plays to line bucks. Campion tallied in the first few minutes on a 45 yard run.

Dubuque climbed into the undisputed driver's seat of the conference with a 14 to 0 victory over a stubborn Clinton team in the final game of the season. The Red and Blue punched over their first score on a pass from Pape to Hoerner in the third quarter. A long run produced the final touchdown.

Two diverging opinions put Dick Hoerner and Roger Orvis in first team positions on the Iowa Daily Press Association and Des Moines Register's All-State Teams, respectively. Five other Ram players were given honorable mention on the two teams.

Mightier Rams

To the average fan the Ram basketball season was a roaring success, the sole reason being a district win over Davenport. But the team failed to play their best game except during a few encounters during the season, and found themselves with a seventh place of .400 in the Conference standings.

The cagers began their valley conference competition with wins over McKinley, Franklin, and Roosevelt. Then after losing two games by lopsided scores to Davenport and Clinton respectively, the Red and Blue cagers registered their final conference victory over East Waterloo.

The Rams fared well in non-league competition, garnering seven victories and four defeats. The only out-of-league team to defeat Senior twice was flashy Waukegan, Illinois, a newcomer to Senior's schedule. In the first of the series the Illinois team, which had averaged well over 40 points a game defeated the fighting Red and Blue by an overtime margin of two points. The second, on the Waukegan floor, resulted in a fourteen point defeat. Monticello and Champion were the two other teams who sullied the cagers' non-conference record.

The high spot of the Ram's cage season came in state tournament play when, after squeezing out sectional victories over Delhi and Monticello, the Red and Blue quintet, revenge their sole motive, walloped Davenport 33 to 27 in district play. Dubuque hopes for a state championship, tumbled however in the next game with a one point defeat at the hands of Anamosa.

The junior lettermen, including Dick Hoerner, Richard Leach and David Pape, elected Robert Rundell, a fourth returning letterman, captain of next year's varsity.

Captain Jack Bierie and Dick Hoerner won all-state honorable mention from the IDPA all Iowa team.

From Little Lambs Shall Grow

This year's sophomore team, coached by Max Warner had a mediocre season, winning six out of 18 games. Three of these wins were against conference foes and three against non-league opponents.

After losing their first two games to McKinley and Davenport, the Lambs overwhelmed Clinton and Monticello each by more than ten points. Then the Lambs were defeated by East from Waterloo and the East Dubuque high varsity. Following a defeat by Freeport, the sophs defeated the Roosevelt sophomores in a real thriller, 25-24. In quick succession came defeats by McGregor, Davenport and Iowa City. In a return game, however, the Lambs defeated McGregor decisively. Clinton was the next and last victim of the Lambs. This left the sophs with a won and lost average of .300 and a ranking of eighth in the Mississippi Valley Conference standing.

Ed Streeter, husky forward, was chosen by his teammates as post season captain because of his ball handling ability and general basketball skill.

Although the sophomore team very seldom shows a very impressive won and lost average, because of their lack of experience, Coach Warner considers a season successful if the team has shown a marked improvement in style and performance.

Wrestling to the uninitiated is a science of acting interspersed with frequent grunts and groans and gyrations supposedly making it a sport. This is big time wrestling. However, wrestling at Senior is intended to give spectators and wrestlers an appreciation for grappling as a sport.

With a team composed of several veterans, some of them returning footballers, Coach Dalzell molded together a team that among others won dual meets, a first place in the district, and fifth place in the Conference. The Rams failed to place with state finals.

Success marked the Dubuquers' first matches with crushing wins over Vinton School for the Blind and Savanna. Probably the most pleasing victory both for the school and team came when the Red and Blue eked out a 21 to 19 victory over Davenport right on the heels of a crushing basketball defeat. In later season meets the Rams again crushed the first two teams, but met defeat at the hands of the Blue Devils.

With the two Waterloo teams, East and West, the going for the Rams was also tough with the defeats resulting from dual meets with these two teams. Clinton also stopped the Dalzellmen 19½ to 15½.

The Rams reached their peak in the district meet at Dubuque when they tied New Hampton for first place. With Captain Watters, Aronson, and Holmberg copping firsts, the Rams piled up seconds and thirds to gain their victory.

Although football and basketball provided plenty of thrills for spectators, intramural games gave more students actual experience and fun in playing than varsity competition ever has done.

This year, five sports were included in the intramural schedule, basketball during the winter; and volleyball, baseball, bowling, and golf.

Because of the absence of James J. Nora, director of intramural activities, Thea Gibbs, substitute, drew up the basketball schedule with a maximum of six teams. Those teams entered were the Nomads (Senior), Lion Cagers (Senior), Woodtick (Senior), Meatball Tech (Junior), Grapplers (Juniors), and the Rambling Ramlets (Sophomore).

From the beginning of the season, two teams stood out as potential champions. The Senior Nomads and the Meatball Tech, a team of junior bookkeepers. By cutting down opposition by such overwhelming scores as 50-11 and 39-12, the two bitter rivals advanced to the final game of the season with unsullied averages of four wins against no defeats. In this crucial game, the Meatball Tech were within a free throw of tying the game, but the ball rolled around the hoop and out. The Nomads were then crowned champions. Kenneth Meisenburg and Raymond Batteram led the league with game averages of 14 and 11 points respectively.

Winning the intramural bowling championship was a senior class team consisting of Paul Anthony, Don Meyer, Harlan Loible, Paul Watters, and Ray Weber. Captaining the runner-up sophomore team was John Diehl. After all the averages and scores had been added up, the all events winner was Paul Watters. Runner-up in this division was Bob Strohmeier. Watters, Strohmeier, and Francis Smith were the top three in the singles tournament.

The Spiking Six won laurels for the senior class by winning the school volleyball championship, winning 14 games and losing one. Following close behind was the Faculty Braintrusters with an average of two losses out of 15 games.

Rivalry

Feminine

Technique and tactics in girls' sports were made more important than ever before at Senior. Undoubtedly the biggest reason was the formation of a girls' tennis team. This was the first time in the history of the school that Senior girls competed in inter-school athletics. At these practices held twice each week, the fundamentals were taught by John Meyers, Senior's tennis coach. From the fourteen girls who competed, a singles champion and doubles champs were decided through tournament play.

Intra-mural teams for basketball, volleyball, and baseball were formed from the Sophomore, Junior and the Senior gym classes. Only those girls who were registered in a physical education class were permitted to enter into these extra-curricular sports. Any group of girls who wished to compose a team signed up with Miss Kretschmer. Those girls who signed individually were put on teams with their classmates. The teams were classified by grade and a team number. The volleyball tournament was an exciting one for the senior girls, with two senior teams battling against each other for the final victory. The 12b1 team won over the 12b3 team, with a score of 44-24. The 12a team also won the girls' basketball championship with the 10a team winning runner-up honors. The high scorer on the winning team was Janet Curtis.

Tumbling was also a favorite with the girls. Each Tuesday after school, those interested in this sport met with their instructor, Miss Kretschmer. They were taught many fascinating "tumbles" which they exhibited between halves at several of the basketball games, at the gym exhibition, and at assemblies.

Badminton constituted another newly developed sport at Senior. Since it was one of the most popular offered, much practicing was done during gym periods with the hope that some day Senior will have a badminton team as well as a tennis team.

On the Cinder Trail

With early season opposition from such potent forces as the weatherman, injuries, and others from winter hibernation, Coach Dalzell whipped together a track team that broke enough finish tapes to announce that the Winged D was again starting a climb to the top.

The end of last year's disastrous season probably reached the ebb point of a three year slump that marked its peak in 1936 with a state championship and started downgrade the next season, but this year has given advance notice that Dubuque is out of their depression in track and are on the recovery trail.

First taste of competition for the Rams came when they journeyed to the D. U. I.'s field house to take a fourth place in the conference indoor meet. As is with all indoor meets, the hard oblong track slowed down the running times and limited the hurdles to a mere 60 yard jaunt. The Rams managed to horn in to grab three firsts.

John Degendorf galloped away from the 880 field with a surprisingly fast time of 2.9.5, while Hoerner raked off 43 ft. 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ in. first place in the shot put and first place tie in the high jump and a fourth in the high hurdles. Streletsky aided the cause with a second place in the pole vault. The two Dubuque relay teams, 440 and circle, took third and fourth respectively in those events.

Meet records came cascading down as the Rams wound up in first place in the annual triangular meet with East and West Waterloo. Altogether nine records fell, with Hoerner and Tyson having a hand in the majority of them.

Hoerner set new records in the high hurdles and javelin, and managed to get other firsts and a third. Other Rams were not idle in the meanwhile, as Degendorf helped himself to a 2.8.7 half, a new record; and Streletsky set another record by soaring 10 ft. 1 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. in the pole vault.

Rock Island, a chilly weatherman, and a slow wet track conspired to swamp the Ram varsity and sophomores in Dubuque's major home meet. The Rams sneaked away with a lowly four first places, two by Hoerner and one each by Leach and Berwanger.

The usual first in the hurdles went to Hoerner, but an eye-raising 51 ft. 3 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. heave in the shot put by Gotthardt of Rock Island completely eclipsed any attempts by Hoerner. Captain Berwanger galloped home in front of the pack to cop the 220, while Dick Leach high-jumped 5 ft. 5 in. for first.

The Red and Blue snubbed the Davenport Relays to visit the Teachers relays at Iowa State Teachers College, and came home with a crop of seconds and thirds, but no firsts. The medley relay team took a third place, with the 440 and 880 yard team, placing fourth in their distances. Hoerner reaped a second in the high hurdles and third in the javelin.

For the second time in the three year history of the LaCrosse relays, the Rams with nine first places picked up first place honors.

Paul Berwanger and Hoerner led the Ram's assault, with Captain Berwanger taking first in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, while Hoerner grabbed up four firsts in the hurdles, the shot put, and the discus. Ed Heineman turned in a 54.8 quarter to account for the Rams other individual first. Two firsts in the 440 Shuttle relay and the 880 relay also fell to Dubuque.

Tennis

Varsity tennis as a major sport at Senior went into its sophomore year under the direction of Coach John Meyer.

In an elimination tournament, C. J. Buelow popped into first place followed by Vic Schiers, Chris Fluhr, and Art Amos. Challenge matches kept the team on edge throughout the season.

The Ram netsters obtained a good dose of competition in their first match with an outside team and lost 9-0 to the University of Dubuque.

In their second match with Loras College the team fared better, winning 4-2. Late season competition included matches with Rock Island, Cedar Rapids, and the conference and state meets.

Forging ahead in the progressive spirit which keynotes it, the instrumental music department this year delighted the audience at the eleventh annual band concert, played host to schools at the Music Festival, saw instructors placed in the elementary and junior high schools to foster musicianship from the lower grades, and featured drum majorettes with turning batons in fancy blackout drills.

The band presented its eleventh annual concert on February sixteenth in the High School auditorium. The combined Junior High band under the direction of John Lang, and the elementary schools orchestra with Norman Fekkether as conductor, also took part in the program. A variety of numbers was presented by various sections of the band and an amusing musical novelty was featured by trombone, trumpet, and clarinet solos. Special lighting effects were used throughout the program.

The music festival in which Davenport, East Waterloo and Dubuque were participants was held April 18-20 at Dubuque. The idea of the festival was inspired by the fact that our band has continually won state honors, and no hard competition was entered in the contest. The festival was organized to eliminate hostility between schools and to offer further education to the participants. There was a day for the bands, orchestras and choruses, at which time concerts, rehearsals and clinics were held. However, individual soloists continue to compete in competitive events.

In addition to its regular rehearsals during school hours, the band meets on Monday evenings. Extra assistance is given to the various sections of the band at sectionals, which are held outside of school hours. The weak points in the individual sections are discovered and corrected at these rehearsals.

The high school orchestra is composed of 70 members. It furnishes music for assemblies and plays. The chief purpose of the orchestra is to develop an appreciation for orchestral classics. A great variety of standard and modern works are attempted through the year.

This year Paul Burlingame directed the dance orchestra, which supplied the music for party dances and for the three dances after the basketball games, in addition to contributing some popular tunes for school assemblies.

Songs Soothe the Soul

Starting out in low gear early first semester, the vocal music department shifted into second with several assemblies and club appearances, and then shifted into a fast high with the annual operetta and a climactic music festival.

The vocal music department under the guidance of Miss Thelma Lillig, is composed of several units, the largest of which, with the exception of the chorus classes, a required twice-weekly subject for juniors, is the mixed chorus. Composed of 60 voices, the Senior High mixed chorus represents the acme in high school choral work. With three small vocal groups, the girls' sextet, the boys' quartet and the girls' trio radiating from its midst, the mixed chorus has participated in several assemblies.

Dubuque and Dubuquers in general were humming "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair" and other of Stephen Foster's immortal compositions after the vocal musical departments presented its annual operetta

"An Old Kentucky Garden." With every member of the cast a mixed chorister, the production revolved around a robbery plot in the pre-war days of Old Kentucky. Foster's melodious rhythms were the musical backbone of the show.

Chorus members had their big moment the first day of the Music Festival where singers from the participating schools assembled for auditions and a gigantic evening concert. All the way from Pittsburgh came Jacob Evanson to conduct the morning auditions and the gigantic concert in the evening. Another integral part of the Festival were the two voice clinics in charge of two musical leaders from Iowa State Teachers College.

Opal Datisman, contralto, warbled her way into the state music contest finals at Waterloo when she pulled down a first division rating in the preliminaries at Monticello. At the same time Madonna Peschong, mezzo soprano, obtained a second division score.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Second Row — Buelow, Fuerste, Feller, Doran, Axford, Jansen.

Third Term Is Unconstitutional

"Third terms" have no place in the genuine democratic and representative spirit of Senior's Student Council, which makes the rules and regulations of the school.

The purpose of the Council is to promote good citizenship, good fellowship, and to render any service possible for the betterment of the school. The powers of the Student Council are many, including the right to conduct all school elections, grant charters to intra-school clubs and other organizations, to plan the activity booklets and to have charge of the bulletin boards. The Council consists of twelve members, four representing the Sophomore class, four from the Junior class, and four representing the Senior class.

Since councilmen can serve only every other year, the possibility of any person serving three years in the council is eliminated. The constitution requires that before a student can run for council office, he must have a petition signed by 20 members of his class, have a scholastic average of C, and be failing in no subject.

The president of the Student Council, who is the highest officer in the school, is elected by the entire student body; the other officers of the council are elected by the council itself. The officers include the President, Vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer.

Each councilman is assigned to the chairmanship of a committee. He chooses his committee, which must consist of at least three members, from the student body at large. The standing committees are Assembly, Citizenship, Finance, Monitor, Social, Bulletin Board, and Joint System. The duty of the Assembly Committee is to plan and put on all assembly programs other than the paid assemblies. The Citizenship Committee is to plan and put on all assembly programs other than the paid assemblies. The Citizenship Committee must see that good order is maintained in and about the building at all times. The duty of the Finance Committee is to devise ways and means of raising money. The Monitor Committee has complete charge of the monitor system of Senior High. Cooperating with the Promotion of School Activities Committee, the Social Committee arranges the social program for the year. The bulletin board committee arranges the bulletin boards.

The members of the Student Council are duly installed before the school body and faculty in an assembly especially convened for that purpose. This installation consists in part of the pledge wherein the members pledge to uphold and maintain the highest ideals of Senior High.

Significant Seniorites

Acme of all honors that can come to a Senior student is election to Senior's Keystone and Torch chapter of the National Honor Society.

First requisite for election is that the student be in the upper third of his class in scholarship, leadership, and service.

A committee of three teachers tallies the votes of all the teachers on the candidate's character, and acts as final jury.

Five percent of the 11a class, ten percent of the 12b class, and fifteen percent of the 12a class are eligible for membership; thus, a student in the upper third can come up for election three times before graduation.

Members of the group this year prepared articles dealing with special school events for the society magazine. Their other activity was the presenting each report period a traveling trophy to the homeroom showing the greatest increase in percentage of students on the honor roll.

Accent On Action

As every town has its Chamber of Commerce, Senior has its Promotion Committee, advised by Miss Vera Waite, to hurry progress along its path. It is a central organization through which the whole strength of the school can be galvanized behind school undertakings.

Ideas to promote Senior activities to the public as well as to Senior students are the commodity handled at the meetings of the organization. Outlined in general, they are then parcelled to single members or small groups for completion.

Carrying on tradition, the committee pushed over the previous year's mark the annual ticket campaign, which furnishes the greatest outside support that athletics receive. Ticket sales for plays, other events, too were successful.

Publicity for school plays, operettas and for the Music Festival was handled by the group, which coordinated and cooperated with the art, printing, and journalism departments to distribute material for Senior events.

Clever and artistic decorations designed by Vincent Stierman and Roger Young were placed on the committee bulletin board to herald events to Senior students. For festive occasions the group adorned the halls in fitting manner.

The Needle... Without the Haystack

ECHO 1940 had the task of recording the important events of the year, bringing you the needle of the news, without your searching through the haystack.

How they did it is a long, complicated story. First choosing a theme that could be continued through the whole book, the staff then determined the number of pages for each department, and delegated to the artists the task of laying out the dummy, a master plan of the book with the spaces for pictures and copy indicated.

To the photographers went the job of filling the black spaces with graphic pictures, to the editorial members passed the job of writing for the blanks clear descriptions of the year's activity.

Then the artists and editor trimmed the pictures and copy to fit the required shape. Choosing the cover design rounded out the editorial duties, which were watched over by Miss Grace Kegley.

Financial success of the book was largely dependent on the sale of copies to students and businessmen by the business staff, which was advised by Miss Florence Magson.

Mighty Pens

The pen may be to most people just one scratchy thing used to write an occasional letter or sign a check, but to members of Dubuque's chapter, the Frederick J. Lazell Chapter of the Quill and Scroll, the pen signifies the clack of typewriter keys, head-scratching, and brain racking that clings to creative work.

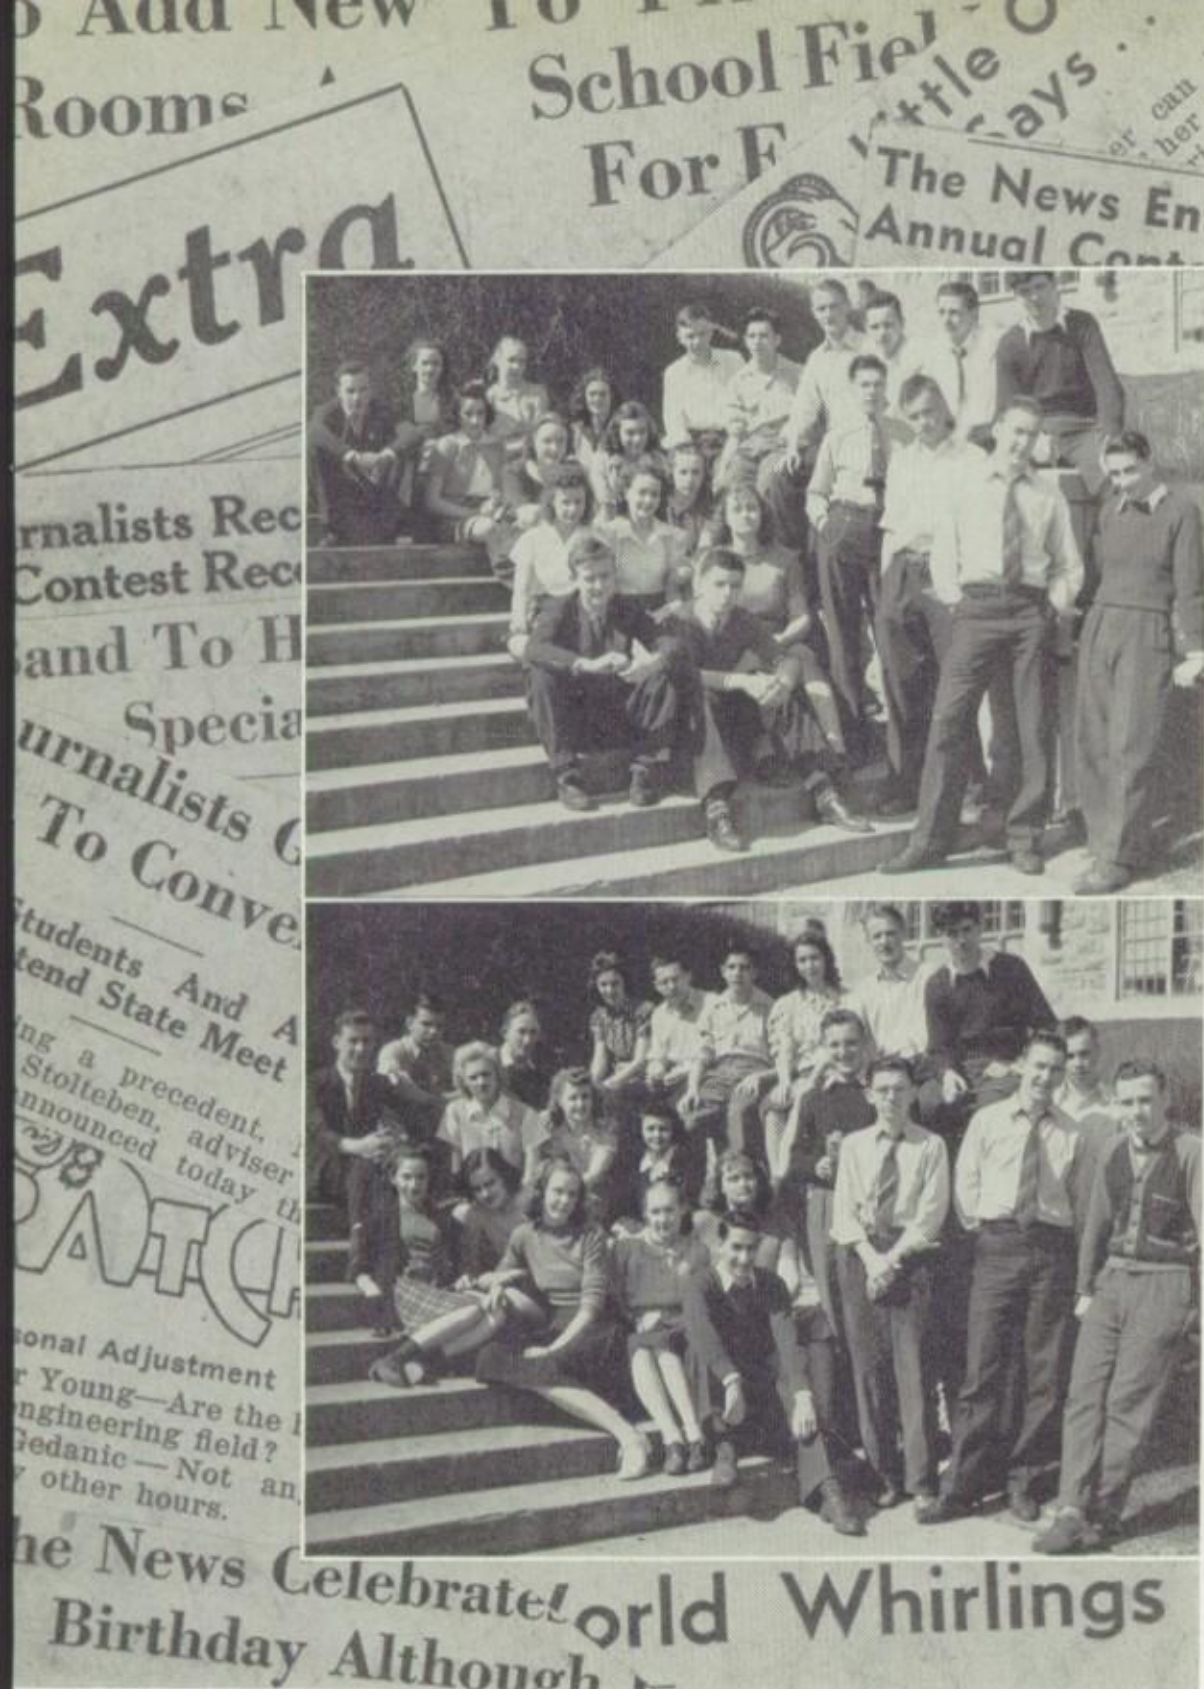

To be a member of this International Honor Society for High School Journalists, one must be a member of the News or Echo staff and be in the upper third of his class.

Advised by Miss Hildegard Stolteben, members of the society placed first in Iowa in feature, interview, and column writing.

They Snoop to Scoop

Opportunities for scoops are few and far between in high school journalism, but the News caught one of those occasions to issue an extra that was the high spot of the school year as concerned the paper. They brought the joyous news of the new building program to "News" readers four hours before readers of the city paper got wind of it.

This year, in keeping with modern newspaper trends in makeup and type, the News changed to a streamlined form of journalism. The new style enables more interesting and liberal page makeup.

Members of the News staff which is changed each semester, are composed of those persons who have taken a previous semester of journalism. News material is gathered from the three main channels, regular beats, administrative quarters, and departments. Most material for publication is written during class periods, but many of the budding journalists have scurried into 248 after school to beat the Monday night deadline.

Following its motto of "Live News of a Live School," the News has endeavored to keep its style clear, concise, and above all, interesting. Since one purpose of the paper is to provide practical journalism training for the members, the News presents its stories in a way interesting to high school students—in other words 'no baby stuff.'

Make-up Man Voigts

Cast for "You're Only Young Once"

Script and stage settings always play a big part in the lives of Senior's students, those who constitute the audience as well as those who take active parts in the productions. This year, the plays were varied, including a farce comedy and a mystery play.

"You're Only Young Once" was chosen for the Sophomore Class Play because of its smooth humor and its straightforward characters. Glenn Hughes' comedy takes place in the principal's office in Lincoln High School in an average American city, during the course of one day. Its cast includes many different types of pupils, from a glamor girl to a brawny but brainless boy. Leading the cast in the role of Gabby Gallegher, the happy-go-lucky, but good-hearted young high school boy, around whom the plot centered, was Robert Richards. The football idol, Ron Dayton, played by Vincent Stierman, met with difficulty and Gabby, as always, was Johnny on the spot to help a friend.

In performing this feat of good will, he implicated innocent Mervyn Ellis, taking the part of Paul Chapman, the boy who yearned for popularity. Another "yearning" character was Lois Cooley, who assumed the role of Mona Fisher, the glamor girl, who had an urgent desire to go to Hollywood. Her mind was changed, though, through the persuasion of Yvonne Wunderlich, as Miss Roos, Dean of Girls.

Gabby's good will was extended to John Truland, who was seen as Mervyn Biggs, and to William Mc Lennan as Harvey Jones, a salesman trying to sell a motion picture machine to Ruth Kloston, taking the part of Mrs. Lee, president of the P.T.A. Gabby, promised a commission, tried to help swing the deal. The girl who saved the day for Gabby and cleared all his difficulties was the shy but attractive Shirley Walker, played by Vivian Parker. The rest of the cast included Walter Frederick, Jeanette Denio, Wanda Patrum, Ruth Herrmann, Robert Zibell, Milton Delaney, Elaine Harvey, Dorothy Biasi, Juanita Kaiser, and James Corbett.

Dramatics

Stage Satellites

For the All-Star Play, "A Night of Terror" was chosen. This play, by Richard Hill Wilkinson, was a challenge to the prowess of those who delight in unraveling complicated mysteries.

An eccentric old man, who had a phobia for changing his will, made Agatha, his stepdaughter, the first beneficiary. Then he changed it to his niece, adorable Christine Thorndike, who was to receive all the money. Someone suddenly decided to settle the matter one way or another by murdering the old man. Christine and three friends from the city were on hand on this eventful day. Someone killed the old man. Who? The will could not be located and suspicion fell on first one and then another. Through it all ran a thread of romance between Lee Kempton and Christine. As true of most mystery plays, the murderer was the Sheriff, the person least suspected. The cast included Herman Eschen, Carol Luke, Janice Bardill, Jack Jones, Robert Jamme, Charlotte Stuart, Lucille Frederick, David Parson, Harlan Lang, Dorothy Biasi, and Bruce Hollingsworth.

Those students who have been outstanding in dramatics during their three years at Senior are made members of the National Thespian Organization.

The student must be recommended by the dramatic coach, Miss Edra Walter, for good work, and he must have had a total of 80 speeches in any play in which he takes part. These requirements are set by the National Society.

Things

For the second consecutive year, the YaWaCa club, a branch of the Young Women's Christian Association at Senior, has been divided into two separate organizations—the sophomore group and the junior-senior club.

Officers of the junior-senior YaWaCa included Elsie Jansen, president; Mary Triller, vice-president; Carol Luke, secretary; and Mildred Kaiser, treasurer; while Elaine Peck, Virginia Dick, Janann Brandt and Betty Hall filled these positions respectively in the sophomore club. Miss Margarete Reu, Mrs. Louise Hoerner and Miss E. Fern Andrews acted as the advisers. Both clubs met bi-weekly on Tuesdays; the club meetings alternating with the cabinet meetings.

Double cabinets were again used in both clubs in order to divide more evenly the work undertaken. Committees were finance, membership, music, program, social, publicity, sports, worship, insignia, newspaper, and service.

One of the biggest highlights of the year for both groups was the spring dance, the theme of which was "April Showers." This year the clubs tackled one of the hardest projects they have ever undertaken in presenting the Rufus Rose Marionette show in November. Two performances were given and both were well attended.

At Christmas time and again in March, the YaWaCa girls gave programs at Bethany Home. Fruit was given to the Finley and Mercy Hospitals as further acts of service.

Other traditional events included the Dad-Daughter Bean Feed and the Mother-Daughter Banquet. Again this year the members could earn the Girl Reserve insignia by attending ring discussions and by living up to other requirements of an all-around YaWaCa girl.

In a few instances the two clubs combined for their meetings. Style shows, hair stylist, speaker on race problems, music programs, Professor Quiz, a Christmas party for the underprivileged children, and amateur hours constituted a good many of the meetings of these groups.

This year the various committees held fun nights at the Y.W.C.A. for the purpose of getting the members better acquainted with one another. Along with the Hi-Y, the YaWaCa gave a leap year party as a novelty social.

Boys Make Good Friends

In order to bolster declining membership, the Hi-Y Club this year decided to have a sophomore and senior-junior organization.

Officers elected to take the senior-junior Hi-Y through the year were Roger Orvis, president; Warren Frissell, vice-president; and Frederick Geiser, secretary-treasurer.

Sophomore Hi-Y officers were: president, Kermit Nesvick; vice-president, Don Dolphin; and secretary-treasurer, Gordon Lee.

These officers met together with Steve Brace, Y.M.C.A. boys' director, and Max Warner, faculty adviser, to plan a program for the year. A Hi-Y hobby institute was promoted and members heard Mr. Zedja talk on photography. Harry Sarson displayed stamps and gave an interesting lecture. The hobby of magic and hypnotism was ably demonstrated by Joe Palen. Besides hobby speakers, movies were viewed and the club went swimming in the "Y" pool as the program.

Sponsored also by the Hi-Y were the fun-nites, during which boys and girls were taught to dance, played ping pong, went swimming or played in the gym. This was followed by an hour of social dancing.

Eleven boys went to the Eastern Iowa Hi-Y conference December 8 and 9. There they heard various Hi-Y problems expounded to them, and considered them in small discussion groups. Those attending were: Tommy Pickard, Wesley Heitzman, Ray Humke, Arvin Fettkether, Fred Humke, Joseph Stonskas, Charles Berwanger, John Hauptli, Fred Geiser, Gordon Lee, and Milton Kapp.

Jointly the G.A.A. and the Hi-Y sponsored after basketball game dances, for which music was supplied by the school dance orchestra. Dances were held after the Davenport game, another after the Clinton game, and the last after the West Waterloo game.

Love Connie No Fences Make Good Neighbors

International peace and good will, as championed by the International Friendship Club, staggered this year under crushing blows from the hands of Messrs. Hitler, Chamberlain, et. al., but the club, turning a deaf ear to anything military clung to its purpose—disseminating information about foreign countries to its members.

The club trod a straight and narrow neutral path in keeping with its intention to avoid airing any controversial issues. Since peaceful European countries were somewhat of a rarity, the club swung zealously toward studying South American and Scandinavian countries. Conspicuous by their absence in discussions of the club were sabre-shaking Britain, France, and Germany.

The most important phase of the club's activities revolved about its members' practice of corresponding with students and young people in foreign lands. Members were given the choice of the names of their future friends of the written word. Since the war curtailed the volume of letters from the large European countries, most of the members exchanged letters with students in the neutral countries.

Meetings given by the club were varied in their scope and manner of presentation. Most common method used was "Mrs.—— will talk on her travels in Luxembourg." However, the club deviating from this, used slides and motion pictures taken by travelers in various countries. In the course of their movie travels, club members visited refined Eastern schools for girls, Swiss farms, and even a genuine Mexican bull fight. Joan Austin presided at the meetings; Miss Anna Gonper advised the club.

Shutterbugs

Newly formed this year, this organization made available to interested shutterbugs information about developing, printing, and actual snapshots. A great many of the club's meetings were held at a downtown studio, where the manager gave the boys practical experience and lectures on technical photography information. Several photography contests open to all students were sponsored by the club. The ribbon winning pictures and others on school and nature subjects were displayed on the club bulletin board. Officers were Ray Heitzman, president; Milton Kapp, secretary; Thomas Pickard, treasurer. Mr. Neil Lutes served as adviser.

Problem Probers

Current Problems Club members, ably advised by Miss Emma R. Trenk, had many a heated discussion in the study of the news and what's behind it in a year which was crammed with living history. Members of the club, chosen from the senior class, met weekly, basing their discussions of contemporary affairs on "Our Times" and the "Scholastic" magazines. Speakers who addressed the club included University Professor Kuhn who discussed "Germany at War," and Robert Reilly and Marshall Thomas, who explained the program and workings of the Iowa Democratic and Republican parties respectively. Joseph Gedanic presided over the club, Eugene Gratz and Eugene Vorman each served a semester as program chairman and vice-president, and Helen Huntoon was secretary-treasurer.

Athlettes

In order to arouse interest in sports among girls, the Girls' Athletic Association, affiliated with the state group, was formed, with Miss Melanie Kretschmer as adviser.

To become a member of this club, the girls must earn 150 points by participating in various athletic activities. Awards and letters are based on points, so the girls continue to work for points after they have become members.

As service projects the club bought and decorated Christmas trees for several Du- buque institutions. A play day for the girls of Washington and Jefferson was given here, and some of Senior's girls attended a play day at Elkader.

Oui, Oui, Monsieur

French Club members like the language they are studying so much that they meet monthly to further their interest. Much of the conversation at the meetings is the best Frenchman to Frenchman style. The officers who are called by their proper French monikers, are president Shirley Maxwell and secretary Mildred Kaiser. Programs apropos to the club's object of learning about French geography, literature, and customs were in the form of quizzes and plays.

Friends, Romans, Countrymen

Though rich in tradition, the Latin Club has a live membership who prove, by the fun they have, that Latin is no dead language. Besides having good times, the members, on the insistence of advisers Misses Eleanor Little and Margarete Reu, learn a little Latin background information at each meeting.

Organized like the government of ancient Rome, the club had for highest officers two consuls, Jack Dauner and Denise Henneger; a censor (membership chairman), Marjorie Humke; curule aedile (program chairman), Marjorie Herrmann; quaestor (treasurer), Bob Carpenter; scriba (secretary), Jane Hall; and plebeian aedile (sergeant-at-arms), John Truland.

Recruits to the club's enlistment obtained their baptism of fire in the initiation service when the members of the club took the victims on a localized tour of Hades, such spots as the River Styx (rumored to be the cafeteria floor) and a rendezvous in the balcony. The procession, after winding blindfolded through school, wound up in the forum where members took a Latin oath. Initiatees for a week wore S. P. Q. R. pendants and saluted at the sight of older members.

With riotous shouts of "Io Saturnalia" puncturing the atmosphere, the club conducted their Saturnalia meeting, corresponding to the Christian Christmas. After a Saturnalia king had been elected, club members sat through a speech explaining Roman customs in regard to the festival.

The big blow of the school year for hard-working Cicero and Vergil students, came when the Latin department and third and fourth year Latin students gave their annual, elaborate Latin banquet. The purpose utmost in the workmen's minds was to emulate their predecessors, the Romans, as closely as possible. To this end the menu contained everything Romans used and nothing else, and included eggs as appetizers, young shoat as the main course, and apples as the dessert. Main theme of the affair was a Roman wedding, with entertainment featured by a vocal solo.

Targets Are Their Aim

Under the direction of John Fecht, Senior boys interested in target shooting and rifle practice formed a rifle club.

A rifle range was constructed by the boys underneath the gymnasium, and fluorescent light fixtures were installed. The United States army supplied two Springfield rifles, targets and four hundred rounds of ammunition to the club each month.

Competition between a team formed from rifle clubs and teams from other clubs is the ultimate goal of the club, but this wasn't accomplished in the first year of organization. To cover expenses, the club collected dues of fifty cents from each member.

Officers elected by the club were Ralph Everly, president; Russell Fecht, vice-president; Ralph Everly, executive officer in charge of practice arrangements; Wayne Ohmert, sec'y; and Joe Ratterman, treas.

Conservation Is Their Flame

Conservation is the flame that keeps the ardor of the Nature Club alive. To this end members of the club have made it their annual project to provide bird shelters and feed. These shelters are constructed by club members and financed from their own funds. Club members also aided the cause by selling Wildlife stamps.

Although nominal headquarters for the club are at Senior High, many of the club's activities revolve around Pine Hollow and its rustic cabin. Here away from the dust and grime of old Dubuque, club members put to test their theories among the quieter hills of the 500 acre pine-studded grant from the state of Iowa.

Serving as president this year was John Poole, assisted by Denise Henneger as vice-president; Adele Beyhl, secretary, and Jack Ohlsen, treasurer. Donald Hauk edited the "Nature Club News" and C. O. Johnson was adviser.
